HISTORY

The Southeast Asian Geotechnical Society (SEAGS) was founded in 1967 by Dr. Za-Chieh Moh as a regional society to cover Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, Philippines, Hong Kong and Taiwan and other societies in Asia at that time where no National Society existed. It has now a membership of over 200. Its members are very active in soil mechanics and foundation engineering, engineering geology, rock mechanics geoenvironmental engineering, and geosynthetic engineering.

The Association of Geotechnical Societies in SouthEast Asia (AGSSEA) is an enlarged Society of SEAGS and promoted by SEAGS to bring all National Societies of SE Asia under one umbrella. The objectives of the Association shall be the promotion of co-operation among geotechnical societies in SE Asia; and the assistance to member societies who have limited number of members.

Thai Geotechnical Society, TGS, was originally formed as one of technical committees of the Engineering Institute of Thailand, EIT, under HM The King patronage in 1993. From then on, it has played an active role in promoting technical advances and research activities in the field of geotechnical engineering in Thailand. With increasing demand in its activities, the committee decided to establish TGS in 2008 and joined the International Society for Soil Mechanics and Foundation Engineering in the same year. Current Thai geotechnical engineers are estimated to be around 2,000 actively working in the country where there are increasing demand for geotechnical expertise.
